SoM Week

Last Friday we are not able to have a class due to SoM week but thanks to our professor for allowing us to participate to the event called Dementia: Battle of the Witz. The medium of the game is also a Kahoot so we have a background on how to play the game and how to get a high score, the question of the game unlike on our class is about the general subjects for the School of Management and questions in current issues. I was not able to get to the next round since they only need 40 participants and I'm on 80+ place so yeah. But it was fun and exciting since you have many competitors so you should read and answer fast and also you need to know the correct answer to be able for you to go to the next round. And after the SoM week our activities are waving to us.
